

Braley District Offices an Information Resource for Iowans Affected by Flooding

Today, Rep. Bruce Braley (D-Waterloo) emphasized that his district offices are available as information resources for Iowans who have been affected by this week's flooding. "In the wake of this week's flooding across Iowa and the First District, it's important for eastern Iowans to know where to look for assistance," Braley said. "My offices in Davenport, Dubuque, and Waterloo can be used as an information resource for people who have questions about where they can turn for help."

Washington, Apr 29 - Today, Rep. Bruce Braley (D-Waterloo) emphasized that his district offices are available as information resources for Iowans who have been affected by this week's flooding.

"In the wake of this week's flooding across Iowa and the First District, it's important for eastern Iowans to know where to look for assistance," Braley said. "My offices in Davenport, Dubuque, and Waterloo can be used as an information resource for people who have questions about where they can turn for help."

"My top priority in Congress is to work hard for my constituents. Eastern Iowans should know that my staff is available to assist those suffering from the impacts of this severe flooding."
